

SAUNTERINGS

From Where The West Begins.

By JOHN T. MEYERS.
For The Sea Coast Echo.

IT wasn't "Turkey in the Straw" on Thanksgiving Day—No, Suh, it was "turkey in the plate—with all the trimmings." A great time was had by all—except Turkey Gobbler. He's the "bird" that always gets the ax for this festive occasion.

In case you're not too stuffed to digest a few historic facts, we quote: In autumn of 1621, Pilgrims celebrated the first Thanksgiving in their new home across the ocean. Friendly Indians were guests of honor.

A proclamation was issued by President Washington recommending that November 26, 1789 be kept as a day of "national thanksgiving" for the establishment of a form of government that made for safety and happiness.

By a proclamation of President Lincoln in 1864, the last Thursday in November became a day of national Thanksgiving "for the defense against unfriendly designs without and signal victories over the enemy who is of our own household." The president's proclamation made the day a legal holiday in the District of Columbia and in the territories.

THANKSGIVING, while typically an American institution, is not unknown in other countries. It has long been a custom in England and elsewhere to observe special days of prayer and fasting in times of danger and disaster. Likewise, the annual harvest is celebrated by feasting and thanksgiving in European countries.

PROMPT and resolute action on part of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion picture company in discharging Lee Tracy, an actor, whose conduct in Mexico City was described by witnesses as disgraceful and ungentlemanly, is most commendable.

The average Mexican, humble citizen and notable alike, visiting the United States respects the laws of honor and decency. He is at all times a credit to his native land. This "salute" cannot be paid Americans of Tracy's stripe. Mexico is due a formal apology.

JOTTINGS: Worldly dames cock feet upon bar rail, and snorting cigarette smoke through their nostrils downtown 3.2 beer places. Where are all the modest girls these days. A grinning dandy exhibiting mouth full of gold teeth. Wonder if Uncle Sam can accuse him of hoarding gold? Department store windows already displaying Christmas toys and Santa Claus backdrops and cover designs of December magazine issues now on sale at news stands present varied and interesting range of Yuletide subjects. Annual "Mail and shop early" stickers have come into prominence again. A daily increase at the parcel post window is in evidence. Nothing so suggestive of relaxation as sight of golfers leisurely rambling across green links in pursuit of small, white pellet. Dog lovers stopping to examine fancy dog houses lined along the curb of busy street. The price is $8.00.

A DOWNTOWN 5 and 10 cent store has solved the problem of what to do with worn-out alarm clocks. A sign before a table displaying a stock of rusty, fire-damaged clocks reads: "Let the kids rebuild them. More fun than jig saw puzzles for the children."

Pieces were listed at 9 cents—3 clocks for 25 cents.

There seems little doubt concerning the youngsters' ability to get the clocks apart, but the "rebuilding" idea sounds fishy to one who made the practice of taking alarm clocks and watches apart a childhood hobby.

VICE President John Nance Garner celebrated his 65th birthday on Wednesday, November 22nd. The hearty Texan spent the day on a deer hunt with close associates. Before the hunt ended, another big buck was added to Garner's list of marksmanship trophies.

JACK FROST has not made an appearance in San Antonio so far this season. The countryside presents a beautiful study in autumn shades. Leaves of the oak tree glitter in the sunshine, blazing in a glorious mass of brown, yellow, red and brilliant golden hues. At this time the colored leaves are being used for decorative purposes about the house. Misqueto trees are still green, symbolizing a late winter.

WONDER if it were love-parimony—or the depression urged a young couple sitting in a parked car to swap turns puffing on the same cigarette?

AUTOMOBILE dealers are gum shoeing around, beaming in the manner of parents before the arrival of Santa Claus. The reason—new 1934 models are due to splash upon automobile row in the near future. Big surprises are subtly promised. The motoring public are all agog, eagerly anticipating the "big show." There is certain to be keen rivalry between manufacturers of the lower priced cars in bidding for public acclaim. It is rumored that an entirely new make of car will be presented this season.

LAKESHORE YOUTH IS VICTIM OF ACCIDENT WHILE COON HUNTING

Limb of Tree Near One He Was Cutting Down Falls and Strikes Him Over Forehead—Dies at Gulfport Hospital Next Night.

Reuben Lafontaine, son of Sylvester Lafontaine and wife, well-known residents at Lakeshore, was the victim of death, practically at his own hands on Monday night while away from his home, accompanied by "Chic" Lafontaine, a relative, coon hunting.

It appears Reuben, who was 18 years of age, and "Chic," older, were hunting in that territory of woods and swamp between Pearlinton and Lakeshore. They had "treed" their game and while cutting down a hollow gum of small dimension the tree fell over to one of larger proportion, breaking a heavy branch therefrom which fell and struck Lafontaine across the front of the skull.

He was taken to Gulfport where he died at the King's Daughters Hospital Tuesday night, November 27, at 11:27 o'clock.

The remains were brought back to the home of his parents by the Fahey Undertaking Company and the funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. Father Costello, the parish pastor, officiating, with burial at the Lakeshore Cemetery.

The deceased was a native of this county and was engaged in the trapping business, having just returned from an extensive trip to Louisiana, accompanied by his companion at the time of the fatality, the trip being one in quest of leases on land for trapping purposes.

He was a splendid youth and his untimely passing away has caused much sorrow in the community and vicinity in which he lived and was well known.

BILL TO BE OFFERED NEXT LEGISLATURE TO KILL R. R. COMMISSION

Appointive State Utilities Board Urged to Replace Present Railroad Body.

A bill, which, if enacted, would supplant the present elective three-member state railroad commission with an appointive Mississippi utilities commission with broad powers over all state utilities, was before the legislative reform board in session at Jackson a few days ago in what was expected to be its last conference before the January session of the Legislature.

The utility commission measure and a companion bill which would give the commission authority to regulate issuance of any securities by any utility, are both bills introduced at the last legislative session, but not acted upon.

The commission bill would abolish the railroad board on Jan. 1, 1936, of three members, appointed by the governor with consent of the Senate, would take office. The new commission would have broad authority to set rates for all power companies, gas lines, telephone and telegraph companies, bus lines, railroads and other utilities.

Also before the reform board was proposed final action on a group of 11 bills approved tentatively at the last meeting and since issued in printed form to all members, which would supplant some 23 boards, and agencies with less than half a dozen new agencies.

R. B. LOGAN BEACH DWELLING, WAVELAND DESTROYED BY FIRE

Handsone Home Prey Of Spark From Defective Chimney—Partly Insured.

The handsome one story frame dwelling summer home of Richard Bland Logan, who resided there permanently up to this fall, when he moved to New Orleans for the winter, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday evening after nightfall.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan and children and party of friends had come out from New Orleans that afternoon to spend the week-end at their country home. As night came on the necessity of fire was felt and one was built in a fireplace that had been used. However, later fire was discovered on the roof, in its very beginning, and said to have been extinguishable in time if the necessary means of getting to the roof had been immediately available. The flames soon spread and the Bay St. Louis fire alarm was sounded, the engine and local department responding as early as practicable and permissible since the blaze was in Waveland.

Insurance to the extent of $3,500, in the George R. Rea Agency, partly covered the loss as the building was worth anywhere from $7,500 to $10,000. Furniture also carried insurance, however, a small part of this saved. Mr. Logan also carried tornado insurance, but in this instance, was of no avail.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan were quite fond of this beautiful and comfortable home. They were endeared to the place as their home in the country and visited it for week-ends during the fall whenever possible and convenient.

Awaiting insurance adjustment, Mr. Logan has given no statement as to his future plans in the premises.

MANY PARTICIPATED IN RECENT BURLESQUE CIRCUS PRESENTATION

In Addition to Patronage From Public Success Was Due to the Many Who Helped.

The recent burlesque circus, presented in Bay St. Louis on the evenings of November 18, 19, and 21, at the Convent Gym, benefit the convent, is still a subject of interest and a sum up of the personnel of the entire parties assisting in the planning and work which made the affair so decidedly a success includes many names.

The article in last week's Echo only included names of parties participating in the circus and not the management or organization. This was due to the failure of the names being turned in to the press as is always customary. However, The Echo has gathered the names of the workers and others and finds a long array of names, representing this section and to whom in the major measure the success of the circus was due.

Officers of the temporary organization presenting this unique form of entertainment follows: George R. Rea, general chairman; C. A. Gordon, secretary; John Damborino, treasurer; Mrs. W. A. Staehle, president Parents' Club, S. J. A., general chair-lady.

Contributing to the actual success includes the names of many, however, the following is about as near complete as possible for the present, viz:

Mesdames W. A. Staehle, George Stevenson, Thos. Smith, John Damborino, Jos. Schaff, Ernest Strong, Jos. Genovese, John Demoran, G. Y. Blaize, Sr., H. T. Fayard, C. Monti, Jimmie Jones, E. ## SOMETHING ABOUT XMAS TRADE GOING TO OUTSIDE LOCALITIES

No Community Can Prosper If There Is Steady Drain Of Money Going Elsewhere.

Every city is going to cut up a very handsome pie during the next few weeks, in the shape of Christmas trade. Who will get the pieces of that fine pie, distributed by the citizens of this trade territory? Will they go mostly to our own people, who will use the proceeds thereof to strengthen our home town business and employ more labor from their home town?

Or will large and generous slices of that nice pie go elsewhere, to people who will make no return of it to our community?

A large fraction of the year's business is done in the four weeks before Christmas holiday. The ability of a concern to pay anything to the owner, or even to pay expenses may depend on whether it gets a fair share of holiday trade.

People who insist on going elsewhere to spend a large share of their Christmas money seem neglectful of the interests of their own home town. A community can't prosper if there is a steady drain of money going out to other places. If the Christmas trade, or a considerable share of it, is lost in that way, the loss handicaps local business for months to come.

Our people should also consider that now is a very excellent time to buy their Christmas gifts. The annual custom of rushing into the stores during the week previous to the holiday and buying the gifts of the season so late, produces a congestion that is costly to the stores, extremely hard on the employees of those concerns, and it places a mountain of work on the backs of harassed postal and express employees. People who are hard up for cash can't perhaps anticipate their purchases. But others will enjoy the Christmas season better if their purchases are made several weeks in advance.

Thanksgiving Thought And Messages For The Unappreciative

During the week we are supposed to think over our lot in life, assembled in our minds the good things that have been our during the last twelve months, and give "thanks" for these blessings.

Very few people are as appreciative of what life has brought them as they should be. Good health is worth a million dollars, to be a member of an honest-to-goodness hard working family is worth another million, friends are worth at least a million, to live in the United States rather than some other country is worth two million, to be a citizen of Mississippi instead of some other state is worth a whole lot, to have a job is worth a half million, and to be living such a life as will enable us to successfully pass thru the Pearly Gates is worth all the rest that it takes to make a billion.

Most of us are getting far more out of this life than we deserve and none of us are half as appreciative of life and its blessings as we should be. Let us really be THANKFUL in a big way this time.—W. F. Bond, State Supt. of Education.

Shell Gasoline Adds Another Station to Long String in Hancock County

The Weeks Motor Sales has contracted with the Shell Company to handle its products in future, and, accordingly, pumps for the well-known product were installed this week at the firms headquarters, Main street, opposite postoffice.

"We are putting in Shell gas," said Mr. Weeks for the reason we wish to meet a general demand and also for the reason Shell measures up well to the wants of the public. We are now ready with our gas service, which heretofore has not been in force, and we are prepared to take care of all gas requirements for our customers and others."

Local representatives of the Shell Company expressed much satisfaction at adding another station in both city and county and hope to continue increasing the number of yellow pumps and stations over a wide area.

GIRL SCOUT TROOP TO PRESENT "LOVE LIGHTS THE TREE" PAGEANT

Old Toys Solicited to Be Refinished for Poor Children—Do Your Part.

On the evening of Tuesday, December 19th, Troop No. 1 Girl Scouts will give a community Christmas tree and a pageant, "Love Lights the Tree," at the Central School Auditorium.

Have you any old toys to donate? If you have, please call Mrs. Goldman, Miss Hona Ansley, or Mrs. Nelson Willis and one of the scouts will gladly call for them.

Mrs. Willis, better known as Margery Nye, did this work for the Christmas of 1931 and she refinished toys for 150 children, and brought much happiness to these little ones whose day would have otherwise been dreary. She has kindly offered to help with the repairing of toys again this year, so the scouts are asking that you "do your part" by sending old toys or if you haven't toys, help with the expense of refishing. The toys will be given to the children after the pageant.

Twenty-two scouts with their lieutenant, met at the home of their captain on Saturday afternoon, practiced their Christmas carols, then hiked to the woods to cook supper over a fire, and walk home by moonlight.

Fire at Pepperdene Dwelling Quelled By City's Prompt Response

Bay St. Louis fire department was called out Sunday evening, shortly before 8 o'clock, to the beach dwelling of K. W. Pepperdene, where fire in its incipency was discovered on the roof of the frame one-story structure. Turning in a prompt alarm and immediate response of the department controlled the fire before it had taken good start.

It appears Mr. Pepperdene had started a fire for the first time this season in a main bedroom, pulling out of the chimney quite a number of newspapers that had been placed by a servant during last spring to keep the soot from falling, but had failed to remove all of the unusual amount of paper that had been stuffed by an over-zealous servant. The remaining paper in the upper portion of the chimney had blazed its way to the roof where it set fire.

The damage was slight. Property, insured, owned by Robt. L. Genin. The department did prompt and efficient work.

Fire at Clermont Harbor.

The brand new home of the Simpson family at Clermont Harbor was totally destroyed by fire Sunday night while the family was asleep from cause unknown.

It appears, from information obtainable, the family had retired for the night and the first intimation of fire was when a member of the family was awakened by the noise of the cracking of fire between the walls.

The place was totally destroyed, covered by insurance in the Liverpool, London and Globe Insurance Company. The general impression is that the fire could not have originated otherwise than from possible defective wiring. However, this is not definitely attributed as to the cause but given as a possibility.

The Simpson home was only a few weeks old, one of the attractive places of Clermont Harbor and the family were delighted with their new acquisition.

LOTTO PARTY

THE UNDERTAKER IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

IN the magazine section of the Los Angeles Times, Fred C. Christopherson, a member of the editorial staff of the Sioux Falls, S. D., Argus Leader, writes on the plight of South Dakota's noble experiment in socialism, under the apt title of "Another Job For the Undertaker!"

That undertaker, when he gets around to burying the economic corpse, will be in for a busy time, and the people of South Dakota will stand the bill for some very expensive funerals. Back in the days of the Non-Partisan League the state started experimenting on an unprecedented scale. It created a state crop hail insurance department, which was liquidated in 1933. It established a state bonding department, which ran merrily from 1919 to 1933. It guaranteed bank deposits from 1915 until 1927. It established a state cement plant, which is still running—the last sad remnant of the economic jag. It had a state-owned coal mine, which went to Valhalla in 1929. And, finally, from 1917 to 1925 it played with a state rural credit department.

The various experiments created deficits to the tune of $75,000,000. The bank deposit law, for example, cost the taxpayers $35,000,000. The rural credit system used up red ink to the extent of $38,000,000. The coal mine swallowed the modest sum of $185,000, and the loss to date on the cement plant is $300,000. And so it went—from bad to worse.

On paper, as Mr. Christopherson said, the socialist program was a honey. There wasn't a hole in it. South Dakota was about to be Utopia on earth. When it came to actual performance, the other side of the medal was seen. Politics ran rampant. There was plenty of money, and the taxpayers could be taken for more. And to-day few commonwealths are sadder, wiser or as tax-ridden as South Dakota.

Those who would have Mississippi adopt similar programs might take a look into the Northwest, read the figures, and do a little thinking.

JUST A MURDERED MAN!

ONE is not surprised, in these days of civilization and culture, to pick up a newspaper and read a nine or ten line article telling of the discovery of a body of an unidentified man, apparently thrown out of a moving automobile.

No one seems to get excited over such crime which has become so commonplace that an incident of the nature reported is no longer real news. Similar items are placed on the inside pages.

The truth of the matter is that human life is entirely too cheap in the United States. Killings are looked upon as inevitable, whether they result from intentional crime or from accidental causes.

A BELATED AWARD.

WE notice in the newspapers that Brigadier-General Perry L. Miles has decorated Arthur Agnew, now sixty, with the distinguished service medal awarded to him for valor at the Battle of San Juan, during the Spanish-American war.

Of course, we have little understanding of military things, but it does seem like a long time between the valor and the award. Apparently, the Spanish-American war has been ended long enough to enable the War Department to make all awards that are to be made.

We know none of the facts in regard to soldier Agnew's service and have no intention of discrediting the award which is so tardily given him. Certainly, there should have been quicker action in the matter, however.

A doctor illuminates a girl's lung and extracts a pin therefrom. That was going pretty well, but before science can hope for full-handed applause, some means will have to be devised for shedding light into the human mind, and then plucking out prejudice and hate.

An Ohio mail carrier has used one bag for more than a quarter of a century, which is an item capable of being handled in an interesting way by almost any newspaper man. It would take a writer like Hugo or Dickens, however, to tell of all the joy and the sorrow that has been delivered out of that old sack.

Doctor Einstein has had his property in Berlin confiscated under a law that permits enemies of the state to be treated in that manner. Since it has been stated that he is neither an anarchist nor a communist, stripes have been laid on many another in the past, namely, venturing out into a realm in which there are things which the public does not understand.

Lieut. Commander Settle's attempt to do some good aerial navigation vertically recalls what has been accomplished by a similar means operating horizontally. Messrs. Post and Gaddy flew around the world in a little more than eight days. That puts one over on Magellan. It took his boats almost eleven hundred days to circumnavigate the earth in 1519, he perished on an island in the Pacific, and one ship out of five reached her home port, carrying about 30 men out of the original 280.

WOULD ABOLISH SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

DEAN JUDD, of the School of Education in the University of Chicago, thinks that a movement "to abolish school boards is in order" and should be supported by all who believe in the simplification of government. He points out that within the forty-eight states of the union, there are approximately 127,000 school districts or administrative units under the control or 424,000 school board members. There is, he says, one school board to every two teachers in the country and, in some states, the school board members actually outnumber the teachers.

He suggests that superintendents of schools be appointed directly by civil authority, to whom they would be directly responsible. Others support his contention that the state should modernize the machinery of government in order to effectively support and control a system of public education.

There may be considerable merit in the contention of the Chicago professor. Undoubtedly, schools have suffered from the ignorance and prejudice of backward members on school boards. However, there is this much to be said for the school board system. It, in many localities, has been the instrument of focusing attention upon local needs and through the service of real friends of education, has been the means of securing unstinted financial support in these localities.

If the state governments should abolish the local school boards, they might as well make up their minds to support the entire expenses of the school system. This may be a good thing but it has the danger that goes with all concentration of authority in central agencies and may cause a lessening of local interest in and support of schools in many districts.

The Washington man charged with stealing a corpse and a score of coffins, may plead for the mercy of the court on the ground that he was tempted by covetousness beyond his power to resist.

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT FOR YOU.

THIS is the time of year most of us are thinking intently—and perhaps frantically—about the problem of Christmas gifts. And here's a good suggestion: Give a present to yourself; not for entirely selfish reasons, but in order to help those to whom Christmas this year might be just one more day.

The kind of gift that will accomplish this purpose is one that provides employment and entails the purchase of basic commodities. And nothing fills the bill more completely than property construction and betterment. Give yourself a new heater or a roof or an electric kitchen or a garage or some new furniture. Better yet, if it's possible, give yourself a new home—you'll be getting it for next to nothing in comparison to what the best opinion forecasts it will cost in the near future, and you'll be spreading Christmas cheer among numerous families.

Your local contractor or dealer in building materials is competent to advise you. He can show you where you can make real savings—how you can make your dollars do spartan duty. Talk it over with him. Think it over with him. Think how much a wave of construction, even if on an individually small scale, would mean to the social and economic welfare of your community. And give yourself that Christmas present. You'll never regret it.

When money begins to be distributed on the basis of service and not through the machinery of rackets, regardless of how they are legalized, this country will begin to get on a safe economic basis.

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT.

IT is a strange and unusually touching story which comes from Jacksonville, Florida. A prominent young woman, grieving over the death of her husband in an automobile accident two weeks ago, borrowed an airplane (she was a licensed pilot) and headed out over the Atlantic.

Four hours later letters she had written earlier turned up indicating that she expected to fly to her death. Thoughtfully, she arranged for the plane which she had borrowed to be replaced. Letter to her parents, her late husband's parents and a few friends were later found. She particularly requested that no searching airplanes be sent for her because it might be dangerous for them.

Friends said she was grief-stricken because of the death of her husband. She wrote one of her friends: "I'm just going out into space to find out what it's all about, and if there isn't anything—that's o. k. too." At the present moment she is probably wiser than living persons who remain and has probably found out.

And, we hope, she has rejoined the husband with whom she was so greatly in love.

An astronomer states that the star space contains nothing but a mass of bubbles. If this is true inflation already is in progress on a large scale.

U. S. STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT.

WHEN Lieutenant-Commander T. G. W. Settle and Major Chester F. Fordney were ascending to the height of nearly eleven miles on their balloon journey last week the people of the nation were given the opportunity of hearing their radio conversation and reports. As the conversations between earth and sky progressed, temperature of the air outside the gondola, the height reached and other interesting questions were settled on the spot for all listeners.

The American airmen reached an elevation of almost eleven miles but not quite to the record set by Russian aeronauts in September, of this year, when they soared eleven and eight-tenths miles. With the Russian, the Americans joined the select group, including Professor Auguste Piccard, of those who have made an excursion in the higher spaces.

Thrilling Statistics: During the holiday season the volume of mail in this country increases two hundred per cent.

MERELY THEORETICAL

By GEORGE E. SCHILLING
(For The Sea Coast Echo)

PSYCHOLOGY.

"QUI non mortalia pectora cogis, auri sacra fames!" To what lengths do you not drive the souls of men, accursed lust of gold! The Roman poet nineteen hundred years ago was telling about a king a thousand years before that, who had killed the envoy of an allied monarch, taken the envoy's money and joined the other side in the war because he correctly assumed that it was going to win. Even Virgil considered this course of action quite immoral.

The classic economists agree with the classic poet as to the strength of the motive, but they differ with him as to the moral effects of the hunger. They claim that everybody is inspired to his best efforts and most valuable work by the greed for money, the desire for pay. No money, no work. This they suppose to be the psychology of the whole economic system. The man wants money, he can get it only by working for it, the more efficiently he works the more money he will get, therefore he works as well as he can. But the harder and more efficiently he works the more he serves society, for his products are a benefit to others. Since he will not work unless he is paid for it, and since the value of his work is in proportion to the amount of his pay, the interests of society are best served by leaving him perfectly free to make money in any way that he can, with no restrictions by law or government. Enlightened self-interest teaches him that he can make the most money if he is honest, so he is generally honest. These economists constructed a cartoon whom they named "the economic man," a being inspired by greed, whose aim in life is to "buy in the cheapest market and sell in the dearest," thus facilitating the distribution of goods, as well as their production. The activities of this creature were supposed to result in ideal economic conditions, presumably not such as we are now experiencing.

This old theory is rather hard to believe, although it is supported by certain obvious facts. There are a number of men who seem to care only for wealth and the things that wealth can buy. Often these men, if they are smart enough, become heads of great business organizations. One who is evidently of this type has recently been testifying before a committee of the Senate. At the end of the social scale are humble workers who are struggling desperately for poor subsistence. These cannot work without pay, under penalty of acute suffering. A philosopher, however, might draw a distinction between simple greed and the feelings of hunger and cold, and he desires to escape these ills.

As a matter of experience and fact, motives are mixed. The proportion of either perfect saints, or complete villains, is not large. Even though a person wants very badly a new hat, or a new car, or a new yacht, this does not mean that he has no other impelling motives. The typical successful business man is not so much absorbed in making a profit as many people, including some economists, believe. The strength of the desire for money seems to decrease after a reasonable amount is obtained, and other interests grow in importance.

Thorstein Veblen, the crank, whom we quoted two weeks ago, said that greed was not even the main motive of the worker. He named three main instincts, or drives, inspiring the normal man even in his economic activities. His analysis is worth a great deal of attention. It may fit our present world better than the older notions.

The first motive he specified is "idle curiosity." We want to find out things just to know them. This is the instinct that makes the baby feel of everything it can reach, that makes the explorer hunt up unknown countries, and that makes the scientist take elaborate pains to measure the speed of light, or to study the structure of the atom. Some people are more curious than others. The greatest are technologists who benefit society by their discoveries.

The second of Veblen's great motives is the instinct of workmanship. We like to do our work well, to do a good job, no matter whether we are well paid for it or not, and no matter what the work may be. The farmer boy likes to plow his furrows true, the housewife likes to keep her home neat and to prepare a good meal, her husband enjoys handling his tools skillfully, managing a business well, or writing an interesting column. At the close of a long life a man wrote exultantly: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course."

The third motive Veblen calls the "parental instinct," by which he means the urge to aid, support and defend the group to which a person belongs—not only the family, but also the school, the club, the society, the class, the party, the community, the state, the nation. If you do not appreciate the strength of this feeling your political leaders do.

The question whether the old school or economists, or Veblen, is more nearly right may become very practical within the next twelve months, if we try to rebuild our economic structure on the basis of other motives than greed. A mild attempt in that direction is now being made.

WITH THE MOVIES AND FILM FOLKS

A unusual with all George Arliss films, "The House of Rothschild," his next picture will be rehearsed for three weeks before being filmed.

Frederic March begins work on his newest film immediately. In the cast with him are Evelyn Venable, Kathleen Howard, Sir Guy Standing and others.

Chief Meyers, one-time pitcher for the New York Giants, an Indian, has joined the cast of "Laughing Boy," in which Ramon Novarro, and Lupe Velez are featured, and will play the part of a Navajo chief.

Returning to Hollywood after a vacation in New York, Aline MacMahon began work on "Hear Lightening," for First National.

Norma Shearer's first film in the year, "Rip Tide," has gone into production on the MGM lot with Robt. Montgomery and Herbert Marshall also in the cast.

Douglas Fairbank, Jr., is scheduled to return from England upon completion of his film, "Symphony in Purple," to appear in the RKO-Radio version of John Howard Lawson's "Success Story." Constance Cummings and Ginger Rogers will probably furnish the feminine interest.

MGM has finished "Christopher Bean," in which Marie Dressler and Lionel Barrymore are featured and it is being shown all over the country.

RKO-Radio announces, with pardonable pride, that negotiations have been completed and they have secured the screen rights to George Bernard Shaw's satiric comedy, "The Devil's Disciple." This will be the first of the Irish author's works to be filmed in this country. Contained in the agreement was a provision that John Barrymore appear in the film.

Paramount has acquired the screen rights to the Broadway play, "Pursuit of Happiness," which deals with the romantic and humorous phases of what the American colonies called bundling.

The performance of Max Baer in "The Prize Fighter and the Lady" is attracting considerable favorable comment from the audiences who have seen the film. A New York film critic dubbed him the male "Mae West." It is said that Max is wanted for two more MGM pictures and it is rumored that he has been offered a weekly salary almost on a par with that now received by Greta Garbo.

Leslie Banks, upon the completion of "I Am Suzanne," was all set to return to his native soil, England, but he has been prevailed upon to remain and play the male lead in "The Flight of the Swan." Since this is the much discussed story of Pavlovna the big role will naturally belong to

THANKSGIVING, 1933.

THOUGH Want still stalks by night and day,
And Crime's red hands are wet,
Though skies above are grim and gray,
And Terror taunts us yet,

Despite the gloom that dims the stars
Despite the want and woe,
Despite the doom of prison bars,
Despite the tears that flow,

For guidance, Lord, amid the gloom,
For courage still to fight,
For faith that fairer blossoms bloom,
For larger, clearer light,

We lift, O Lord, our hands in prayer
With souls that warm with grace
To offer thanks for all Thy care,
And for Thy friendly face.

ATTENTION FARMERS!

The Mississippi Extension Department reached an agreement several weeks ago whereby the Public Welfare Office at Jackson would secure its supplies of sweet potatoes and sugar cane syrup within the State of Mississippi which it proposes to distribute through the County Welfare units. As to what extent the C. W. A. employment plans will interrupt we are not in a position to say at this time, but it is suggested that each farmer in cooking his syrup exercise the greatest care and try to put up a strictly first-class product.

Just how soon the Welfare Unit will begin to place orders with the Extension Department for sweet potatoes and sugar cane syrup, I am not in position to say, but I would suggest that you get in touch with me at your earliest convenience and list the quantity of sweet potatoes and syrup you have to sell.

For further information as to grading, packing, and price of these products, see your County Agent.

FEED AND OTHER CROP SHORTAGE

Mr. Farmer and Mr. Business Man of Hancock County:

You might be interested to know something as to crop conditions prevailing in the county and use the information to figure out a more balanced farm program for next year.

According to information compiled by Mr. D. A. McCandless, Agricultural Statistician, and the State Extension Staff, I present a few facts about the shortage of feed and food crops existing right here in Hancock county.

Computing the needs for one of our more common farm crops on a per human and animal consumption basis, allowing 60 bushels of corn per head per year for work stock, 20 bushels per head for dairy cows, 5 bushels for beef cattle, 15 bushels for hogs, one bushel for poultry and 3 bushels per human consumption, Hancock county's total need is 192,754 bushels of corn per year. Our production last season was only 49,000 bushels, or a shortage of 144,754 bushels. To supply the above shortage on an average production yield of 16.3 bushels per acre, an additional area of 8,880 acres will be required, so Mr. Farmer, this is presented for your consideration.

The syrup needs for human consumption, according to our population are 57,075 gallons per year while our production in 1929 was only 18,089 gallons, or a shortage of 38,986 gallons, and the syrup crop this season is about the same as that of 1929. To supply this shortage 197 additional acres will be required, so Mr. Farmer, here is another common farm crop easy to produce and I submit this for your consideration, too.

The hay needs for the work stock, dairy and beef cattle of the county, computed on a basis of allowing two tons per year for each dairy and work animal and one ton for each beef animal, our total needs are 4,387 tons, while our production in 1929 was only 995 tons or a shortage of 3,392 tons. Our hay crop this year was on about an average of that of 1929. To supply this shortage of 3,392 tons of hay figuring on an average yield of 1.4 tons per acre, it will require 2,737 acres.

The above figures, gentlemen give you an idea as to the acreage in the county lying idle that is actually needed to be in production in addition to that already assigned to these crops alone in order to produce local needs for our human and animal population if properly nourished.

Is there a good reason for this shortage in a territory where our soil types will respond favorably to intelligent cultural methods? Anyway, the facts presented above furnish food for thought in arranging a crop program for 1934.

State Forest Nursery Grows 193,000 Pine Seedlings To Sell

The forest nursery operated by the State Forestry Commission, the U. S. Forest Service and Perkinson Junior College reports 193,000 forest tree seedlings available for distribution to Mississippi farmers. Orders are now coming to State Forester Fred B. Merrill at Jackson for the pines at $1.50 per thousand and hardwoods at $2.50 per thousand. These prices enable farmers to secure seedlings at about six or four for a cent. Species available are Slash, Long Leaf, Short Leaf, and Loblolly Pines, Black Locust and Osage Orange. The Forester says that any surplus of the first two pines will be planted on the University State Forest in Stone, Harrison Jackson and George counties.

TWO ROMANCES
WOVEN IN "GOLDEN HARVEST" STORY

Arlen, Morris, Genevieve
Tobin and Julie Haydon Play Leading Roles.

Dramatic story of present-day turbulent conditions in this nation's wheat country interwoven with two romances, "Golden Harvest," Para-mount's latest Charles R. Rogers production at the A. & G. Theater, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Leading roles are taken by Richard Arlen, Chester Morris, Genevieve
Tobin, Roscoe Ates and Julie Haydon. It is the first of ten pictures which Mr. Rogers is to produce for Paramount this year.

The story tells of the struggle of the modern American farmer to combat the ruinous influence of the trading pit. It is pictured through the eyes of two brothers, both born on the farm. The elder becomes a wheat speculator, with his eye on a fortune, who drives down the price of wheat, unthinking of its effect upon the farmer.

When his former neighbors are ruined financially, facing the loss of their farms, his brother becomes their leader, organizes a wide-spread farm-strike, prohibits the transportation of grain to the cities or the planting of a new crop.

The picture reaches its climax when the brothers finally combine in a desperate effort to save the farmers, using the strike as a threat to bolster prices. The human equation causes their financial failure but results in their eventual happiness.

TRUTH AND TENDERNESS FOUNDATION OF FRIENDSHIP.

(Jackson Clarion-Ledger)

EMERSON defined friendship by attributing to it the characteristics of Truth and Tenderness.

Between friends, each may be sincerely himself, without the protection of sham or affection, often assumed in ordinary intercourse.

"My Friend," said Emerson, "gives me entertainment without requiring me to stoop, or to flatter, or to mask myself."

Further, friendship needs tenderness to tide it over rough roads and hard fare, which are bound to come.
The end of friendship is for aid and comfort through all the relations and passages of life and death.

Without Truth and Tenderness, a friendship cannot survive such experiences.

FRUIT cake is much improved by time—standing allows the many kinds of fruits and spices to blend together to make a delightful cake. There are two kinds of fruit cake; a dark one which is heavily spiced made with brown sugar or molasses which adds to the spicy flavor; the white fruit cake is made without spices. The cakes may be baked or steamed, according to pref-

2 pounds currants
1 pound citron
1 pound dates
1 cup molasses

SCHUBERT MUSIC CLUB

GIVES FIRST RECITAL

OF SEASON TUESDAY.

The Schubert Music Club under the direction of Miss Eveline Lacoste entertained at its first musicale on Tuesday afternoon in the music room of St. Joseph's Academy. It was a lecture-recital on the opera with appropriate solo and chorus numbers illustrating the various schools of opera. The lectures on the Italian, French and German schools were given by Miss Marie Louise Renaud. The growth of opera was traced from its beginning in Florence in 1580 to the most modern of today's music dramas—Gruenberg's "Emperor Jones." Program notes given before each musical number made the ensuing selection more interesting and enjoyable to the audience. Mrs. H. G. Glover's beautiful soprano voice was heard in a most inspiring rendition of the aria Vissi d'arte from Puccini's Tosca.

The club was indeed fortunate in presenting as its great artist Mrs. Katherine Schmidt Thomas, violinist. Mrs. Thomas, a former pupil of E. E. Schuyten of the New Orleans Conservatory of Music very generously contributed two groups to the program. At the conclusion of the recital Mrs. W. W. Stockstill, president of the club, invited the audience to be the guests of the club at a social hour when punch and cake were served. Presiding at the table were Mrs. George R. Rea, Miss Margaret Green and Mrs. E. C. Carrere.

The complete program follows: Welcome—Mrs. W. W. Stockstill. Salutation—(Gaines)—Club. Lecture on Italian Opera—Miss M. L. Renaud.

"Vissi d'arte" from Tosca, (Puccini) Mrs. Glover.

Lecture on French Opera—Miss Renaud.

Bacaratle from "Tales of Hoffman," (Offenbach), and Meditation from "Thais," (Massenet)—Mrs. Thomas.

Gypsy Chorus from "The Bohemian Girl" (Balfé) and

Invitation to the Bells from "Chimes of Normandy" (Planquette)—Club.

Lecture on German and Modern Opera—Miss Renaud.

"Swan Song" from Lohengrin (Wagner)—Club.

All numbers were accompanied by Mrs. Carl Smith except the Salutation and Gypsy Chorus, which Miss Renaud accompanied.
